Get Active

As we head into an early spring let's take the time to look at our neighborhood and join in with others who are trying to keep it a decent place to call home. If you aren't involved you may be surprised to know that all through the year there is a dedicated group of your neighbors who pick up litter; plant trees, shrubs and flowers; help build gateways; patrol the streets looking for criminal activity; take care of feral cats; work on communications; arrange funding; report blighted properties; fight graffiti; help youth get involved; attend city meetings; contact city officials and other activities that keep our area as livable as it is. If it seems as if there is still more to do then imagine what it would be like if no one cared. The forces working against all of this are numerous so it sometimes seems like an uphill battle.

Come to the March 15 CUF meeting to see what you can do to get involved. We need folks who will step up to the challenge that lies beyond watching and listening. Ask any of our board members at the meeting how you can take an active part in the process of correcting problems in the area. It is through the number of people we can involve in sharing responsibility that makes creating change a more manageable task.

There is unexplored potential for real improvement in this area's housing situation that might occur through evolution or possibly not. Our business district is about to undergo an unprecedented makeover. Other community councils in the city and throughout the country have completed innovative residential projects that have had positive results. Having a vision for change and making an attempt at seeing it through is worth anyone's time.

Neighbors relayed what they knew. Some people had already received the postcard. Trash staying on Thursday. Recycling days might change for some of us.

Neighbors also asked for street sweeping increases asked this to be addressed with Mr. Glenn when we do get to meet with him.

Mr. Glenn came at 8:20. He apologized for being late as this is his third meeting tonight. Postcards only to those who are changing the trash pick ups. This is the blue card.
Another card is going up on the recycling weeks shifting. Changing the week of 3/5/12. Postcards to owners and renters both, so they are trying to increase awareness of the change. CUF has the smallest change (only about 400 addresses affected).
Can go online and figure out the day of recycling and the day of the trash pick up.
PR release next week end of Feb about the change in recycling/trash collection.

Mr. Glenn gave us the number. 352-5485
Street sweeping questions asked. Each street should be 4 times per year. Mr. Glenn agreed. We were skipped in November/December.
Neighbors asked for street cleaning to happen during UC's spring break. A plea to do this was given to Mr. Glenn. He gave a promise to look at the street listing and to make sure we still had our 4 spots.

Our Board will also work on this to get this publicized and to work with UC to get this coordinated for students.
Another question was raised about trash can enforcement. Mr. Glenn said they are looking at trash ordinance changes. Enforcement is down to one person currently.

Plan Build Live

The City of Cincinnati launched its Plan Build Live initiative on February 24 at a news briefing hosted by City leaders, including Vice Mayor, Roxanne Qualls and Charles Graves, Director of City Planning & Buildings Department.

Plan Build Live is designed to transform the development process for the City of Cincinnati's residents, communities, businesses and property owners. The project will evaluate and rewrite Cincinnati's complex development regulations into a smooth process to make development and redevelopment easier for neighborhoods and communities.

Plan Build Live is also a significant milestone in making Plan Cincinnati a reality. Plan Cincinnati, the City's first comprehensive plan in nearly 30 years that will be completed in mid-2012, was driven by community feedback to identify where and how the City should develop over the next 20 years.

The Plan Build Live website serves as the hub for all information related to the new development process and includes regular updates on the initiative's progress. The expected completion date of this initiative is 2013, but feedback over the two-year process is critical to ensure the public can review and comment on the work in order to further inform actions needed as the City implements this initiative.

Residents and businesses are encouraged to participate in public meetings and surveys, as well as share their input with City officials on social media:

About Plan Build Live

Plan Build Live will result in streamlined processes that support vibrant economic development and strengthen the quality and unique character of the city's neighborhoods. Residents and businesses are encouraged to participate in the process and share input with City officials. Visit PlanBuildLiveCincinnati.com for the latest updates and to join the discussion today!

The Big Shake

The Big Shake – How the 1811-1812 New Madrid Earthquakes Rocked the Ohio River Valley explores the history and causes of earthquakes, taking a close look at seismic activity in the Midwest.

The exhibit also highlights the potential impact of earthquakes in the region and the building technologies that can help structures withstand seismic forces. The Big Shake will be on view at the Betts House through May 31, 2012.

The Betts House has been part of Cincinnati's history for over two hundred years. Built in 1804, it is located in the Betts-Longworth Historic District in the city's West End. In 1996, the oldest surviving brick building in Cincinnati opened to the public as a museum that interprets the built environment. This remarkable survivor of Cincinnati's period of settlement offers exhibits and programs on architecture, historic preservation, building trades and materials, and construction technologies.

The Betts House - 416 Clark Street - Cincinnati, Ohio 45203 - (513) 651-0734 - info@TheBettsHouse.org

Hours of Operation:

Tuesday - Thursday: 11:00 am - 2:00 pm
2nd & 4th Saturdays each month: 12:30 pm - 5:00 pm.
(Other days and times by appointment.)

Architreks

Architreks walking tours connect Cincinnati with its history. Every Saturday and Sunday through September the Cincinnati Walks Architreks walking tours take participants on guided, two-hour journeys through the city's communities. Walk through Downtown, Over-the-Rhine, Mt Adams, Walnut Hills, Clifton or Northside and learn how these 19th century neighborhoods took shape.

"Our objective is to inspire our participants to discover Cincinnati's history and connect to the unexpected," says Trudy Backus, Architreks/Cincinnati Walks founder and volunteer coordinator. "Our tours explore the hidden gems and architectural landmarks of Cincinnati so that both visitors to our city and local residents walk away with a new perspective."

The proceeds benefit community preservation and education. Sponsored by the Architectural Foundation of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Preservation Association, all two-mile tours are wheel-chair accessible.

No reservations are necessary to reserve spots on the tours, and groups and businesses may arrange custom tours by request. Tours are $5 for children, $15 for adults, and $120 for groups of 10 or more. Subscriptions are only $30.

Visit their website or the Architreks/Cincinnati Walks Facebook Page for tour schedules and other information.

Old St. George

According to an article in the March 9 Business Courier, the plans for Old St. George, built in 1874, include a combination of restoration and new construction. Developer Doug Hine says it will be a "museum-quality restoration" including reconstruction of the twin spires. An improving economy and the possibility of federal tax credits are bringing new life to the project.

Plans call for a wing of rooms above a garage on what is now the parking lot (the former site of a three-story teachers college.) The church sanctuary will serve as a public space that can be reserved for fundraising events, weddings, banquets and corporate meetings. The former brothers' dining area will become the hotel's breakfast room. What was once their dorm rooms will be reconfigured into hotel suites.

Joe Shafran of Paran Management Co. Ltd. is working with Mr. Hine on Old St. George. Shafran's company completed a similar project in Cleveland where they restored the former Glidden Hotel near Case Western University.
